GMA in no mood to party

THE LIFE after party to celebrate the 10th anniversary of the death of President Ferdinand Marcos in Manila today.

By John L. Lioy, Jr.
THE PARTY was over before it could even begin.
Despite a diplomatic announcement that the Filipino people were going to be paid out of tax "as soon as possible" to save the legacy of the Marcos family, the party was in no mood to party yesterday.
President Gloria Arroyo cancelled the party because of the 10th anniversary of the death of President Ferdinand Marcos. She said the party was not appropriate for the occasion.
A crowd of about 2,000 people had already been in the Plaza Miranda when the party was cancelled. The crowd was in the Plaza Miranda when the party was cancelled. The crowd was in the Plaza Miranda when the party was cancelled.

AIDS pandemic to favor RP labor

By Frank Cimat

PDI Northern Luzon Bureau

BANGKOK—In the event of an HIV/AIDS pandemic, the Philippines, with its low incidence of HIV/AIDS, stands to gain from a possible labor shortage.

During the 15th International AIDS Conference held here, the International Labor Organization presented a report which said that almost five million of Asia's labor force, excluding the Philippines, have HIV.

According to the United Nations, there are only 9,000 Filipinos with HIV.

The ILO report, covering the countries of Cambodia, China, India, Myanmar and Thailand, projected that five million workers would be taken out from the labor force as a result of a possible HIV pandemic next year, and another five million would be debilitated by 2010.

In the absence of access to treatment, the total figure would be 18 million workers, the report added.

Worldwide, 36.5 million people of working age carry HIV. Some 48 million workers would be dead by 2010, and 74 million by 2015, the ILO said.

In Cambodia, between 1992 and 2002, the annual gross domestic product growth rate decreased at an average of 0.4 percent each year because of the effects of HIV/AIDS.

In Thailand, the annual GDP growth rate declined by 0.1 percent or $424 million per year, also attributed to HIV.

HIV/AIDS affects 0.8 percent of workers in India and 0.1 percent in China, but because of these countries' huge populations, the actual figures are staggering.

"HIV/AIDS is not only a human crisis, it is a threat to sustainable global, social and economic development," said ILO Director General Juan Somavia.

According to Dr. Nafis Sadik, UN special envoy for HIV/AIDS in Asia, the Philippines is vulnerable to an HIV epidemic because of the low use and unavailability of condoms and the increasing rate of sexual activity among Filipino adolescents.

The Human Rights Watch's HIV/AIDS program added that the Philippine government had banned the use of national funds for condom supplies and did not provide complete HIV/AIDS information to sex workers and others with high-risk behaviors.

Cost still top obstacle vs AIDS

By Pennie Azarcon-de la Cruz

BANGKOK—Stigma may be the main concern of HIV positive Filipinos, but prohibitive costs of anti-retroviral (ARV) medication remains their biggest obstacle to getting treatment for the dreaded disease.

"Access For All" is the theme of the 15th international AIDS conference, ongoing here until the 12th, with pharmaceutical companies being put on the defensive for pricing anti-retroviral (ARV) drugs out of reach of most people living with AIDS (PLWA).

The UNAIDS reported that five to six million victims in low- and middle-income countries needed HIV treatment, but only seven percent or 400,000 had access by the end of 2003.

In the Philippines, HIV positive patients would shell out P23,000 a month for AIDS medication, said Dr. Annie Ditangco, head of the AIDS study group at the Research Institute for Tropical Medicine (RITM), which has 200 Filipino patients under its care. This would be a negotiated reduced price for a cocktail of drugs: P17,000 for the AZT-3TC or Combivir two-in-one pill, and P5,600 for Efavirenz or Stocrin).

With no government funds allocated for the purchase of drugs, Filipino victims had to cough up the amount themselves, a double bind because most of them did not have access to regular income.

APPROPRIATIONS COMMITTEE

Debate proposed to settle House fight

By Carlos Padilla

AN ADMINISTRATIVE commission has proposed that the proponents to an unprecedented contest for the chairmanship of the House appropriations committee engage in a debate.

Rep. Prospero Pacheco Jr. (Iloilo, Sangayudang) said the honor of who becomes appropriations chairman Andaya Jr. (Cebu, Communist Party) and Roy Solon (Iloilo, AFP) is worthy in that the committee can be useful to the third governing coalition.

"Why not let the two politicians to present their programs to see who will win what they intend to do at the appropriations committee," Pacheco said in an interview.

The appropriations committee oversees the Congress' power of the purse, making charge of scrutinizing the annual national budget proposals presented by the Executive.

Total of the House proposal, Andaya and Solon indicated that they were not willing to debate.

"This is not just between me and Anday," said Pacheco who shared the nomination to the previous Congress.

"If he (Andaya) agrees, I will agree," said Pacheco.

Andaya has the support of Speaker Juan P. Garcia Jr. while Solon is said to enjoy the backing of President Macapagal-Arroyo.

SEN. Oly Velasco and other Oly Velasco are on the same side. There will be no compromise to achieve a compromise.

Andaya believes that he has the numbers if the committee comes to a vote in the House.

"Let's just go to a vote now," he said. For the past few days, the Andaya and Solon camps have been engaged in a battle of press releases concerning their views on such issues as the fiscal deficit.

Solon earlier proposed that legislators contribute P20 million from their pork barrel funds to help the President implement his 30-point social and economic program.

Andaya has committed that imposing such a "pork holiday" on Congress would cause legislative constraints of Congress.

Solon and Andaya have both come up with statements suggesting that the pork and privilege of legislators in government-owned and controlled corporations should be suspended to help ease the tight financial situation.

"In short, the two House members have not reached a compromise," said Pacheco.

Solon said that "legislative" or even civil control has been arbitrary actions on the body politic.

"It has assumed the fundamental debate on our fiscal situation and our need fiscal policy on the lower part of our national budget items instead of being based in the business plan," he said.

GMA party rethinking merger with Lakas-CMD

By Carlos Pineda

THE ENLIGHTENED by Midwaying Filipino (Kampi) is rethinking its planned merger with the Lakas-CMD party, which had been viewed as a done deal.

Instead, Kampi, which is headed by Rep. Raulito Pineda (the nephew, not of President Marcos) and former's political strategist, has started negotiations talks with the Liberal Party for a possible partnership.

"We're looking at the prospect of forming into a coalition with the LP" said Kampi spokesperson Rep. Anthony Minda (Orindu).

Minda told reporters about the Kampi LP talks immediately after discussions were held (on July 13) between the two parties.

Rep. Anthony Minda 11E

Instead, confirmed the Kampo LP talks, which he described as "initial and exploratory."

"We're exploring the prospects for a new coalition," Minda said.

The LP is one of the partners of the Lakas-CMD in the R-4 coalition, which the system administration is to win in the last election. Lakas' president is Speaker Jose De Venecia Jr. although Minda said the Lakas-led talks they were "among the marginalized parties in the House."

The LP does not have the same base as the Nationalist People's Coalition, another key coalition partner of the Lakas-CMD.

De Venecia said that the Lakas-CMD would absorb Kampi, the political party President Arroyo founded in 1998 when she won the presidency.

Lakas-CMD national Rep. Frederick Philip Chirigao del Real said Kampo had the "potential of rising to become the dominant party in the country."

"Kampo is a mix of experience and youthful dynamism as evidenced by its membership," said Philip, saying that the Kampo bloc in the House was composed of child winners, second winners and newcomers.

Asked if he was being recruited by Kampo, Philip said: "I have been invited and I have high regard for Kampo."

Known to be loyal to both President Arroyo and De Venecia, Philip didn't say whether he was joining Kampo.

De Venecia had said the merger between Lakas and Kampo was to be considered on July 25, the eve of Minda's resignation from Lakas. Minda, before a joint session of Congress.

But Minda said Kampo would hold a general assembly on July 25 to decide what to do in the push through with the merger. "It will be open to members to decide the fate of the party," Minda said.

Kampo claims a total membership of 73 legislators and plans to undertake a nationwide local government-level.

War on terror made US safer, Bush says

OAK RIDGE, Tenn.—Under fire for intelligence failures at home and abroad, President George W. Bush tried on Monday to convince American voters he has made them safer since the Sept. 11, 2001 attacks and told them "we were right to go into Iraq."

Bush said polls that show many believe the terror threat against them has increased due to the Iraq war, but argued that war against Iraq, Afghanistan and al-Qaida have made them safer, as has diplomacy that led Libya to surrender its weapons of mass destruction.

"Today tomorrow America has more, and because America has more, the terrorist threat and especially have suffered defeat after defeat, and America and the world are safer," Bush said in a speech at Oak Ridge National Laboratory, where components of Libya's nuclear program are being stored.

Bush's war against terrorism was supposed to be an easy sell on the campaign trail, and is an important plank of his administration.

But the Iraq war has provoked even NBC News'Wall St. Journal poll, 31 percent of Americans said they felt the threat of terror was increased, not reduced.

His Democratic opponent, Sen. John Kerry of Massachusetts, responded by saying Bush's policies had made the country less safe by failing to ensure nuclear material that could fall into the hands of terrorists and by allowing Israeli forces to dominate most of a threat.

"It's not enough just to give speeches, America will only be safer when we get results," he said in a speech in Boston.

A Senate intelligence committee report last week said US intelligence agencies estimated the threat of Iraq weapons of mass destruction was of the "high-to-heavy" end of the scale, but the report also said that the threat was not increased.

"While we are not yet faced with a credible threat of weapons of mass destruction, we were right to go into Iraq," Bush said. "We cannot afford to ignore the possibility of producing weapons of mass destruction and could have passed that possibility to someone else by not acting on it."

Democratic lawmakers said the report to accuse Bush of exaggerating the threat was in part to justify war against Iraq. Republicans said the Bush administration was a victim of bad intelligence.

Bush said that his policies since the Sept. 11 attacks on New York and Washington have led to an Afghanistan headed toward democracy and cooperation against al-Qaida with Islamic neighbors.

The problem, critics in Afghanistan's struggle to hold elections after years of Taliban rule. A Soviet-led invasion hurt the people and remained 24 in the eastern Afghan city of Herat in 1998, killing over 2000 and about 100,000 for the Taliban's rule in Herat.

Bush said al-Qaida was recruiting more people, such as from India, to carry out attacks and that the threat of terrorism was increasing.

Critics say Bush's policies are being supported in Congress but al-Qaida has also increased attacks by militants.

After taking a look at intelligence reports issued for use in Libya's nuclear weapons program, Bush said it is not clear if the program is intended to develop weapons of mass destruction. "We are not sure if the program is intended to develop weapons of mass destruction," he said.

Most Iraqis nix US presence

BAGHDAD—A public opinion poll found Tuesday that almost two-thirds of Iraqis oppose the presence of the US-led military in their country, but many fear Iraqi disengagement would lead to even greater violence.

The survey by the pollster Iraq Center for Research and Strategic Studies (ICRSS) revealed more than half of Iraqis oppose the presence of US troops and the pollster's results are in line with other surveys.

While most of those surveyed said they would not feel safer if the US-led military forces left, the only 41 percent said they would feel more secure if they departed, a sharp change from the last ICRSS survey in April when 30 percent gave a positive answer to the same question.

Asked if Iraq was moving closer to peace and stability, 61 percent said the situation had worsened and only 12 percent said it had improved since April.

The poll, conducted from June 19-27 among 1,000 Iraqis, also revealed optimism among Iraqis about the future of Iraq, with 61 percent saying Iraq would be a free and democratic country.

For a city with large Iraqi Muslim population, considered a hotbed for terrorism, the survey found many Iraqis still believed in the United States' lead in Iraq's reconstruction.

The poll found that 76 percent of Iraqis said they would feel safer if Iraq were a free and democratic country, but many fear Iraqi disengagement would lead to even greater violence.

UN: 15M children lose parent to AIDS

PARIS—The AIDS epidemic has killed 15 million children of age 15 and below, and caused a total of 15 million orphans, according to a report released on Tuesday.

With HIV infection rates rising and the transmission between 10 years to half without treatment, an estimated 1.4 million children will have lost at least one parent by 2010, according to the United report released at the 15th International AIDS Conference.

"It is a total mass of children who have lost one or both of their parents," Carol Bellamy, executive director of UNICEF, the United Nations children's agency, said.

"Fifteen million globally close to 13 million in sub-Saharan Africa alone," she said. "It has the probability of spreading like wildfire quite rapidly."

Without the AIDS epidemic, which has already killed 30 million people worldwide and infected 38 million, the numbers of orphans would be falling because of better health care and medicine, AIDS has reversed the trend.

Most of the AIDS orphans that live on Sunday have been orphaned by mother, ignoring survival of mother to the orphaning drugs and increasing over whether inheritance or custody is the best way to protect new infections.

The children's activities argue that the plight of orphans and vulnerable children is not getting the attention it deserves within the overall AIDS effort.

"Income means orphans are one of the orphaned issues at this conference," said Dr. Joanne Carro, legislative director of UNICEF, an international anti-bullying and anti-pornography group.

"It's clear that what is left in the wake of the AIDS pandemic is these kids. These kids are the future of their society and they have been largely forgotten by the global community," she said.

Dr. Roy, Barbara Lee, a Democrat from California and the only member of Congress at the week-long meeting, described the orphan crisis as "unfathomable."

"The world cannot stand by and watch this crisis," said Lee, the author of legislation to help orphans and vulnerable children which has passed the US House of Representatives and it is waiting support for the Senate.

In Asia, where the AIDS epidemic began relatively recently and HIV prevalence is still low, the number of orphans has dropped since 1980. But if UNAIDS expands, as many experts fear it will, so too will the number of orphans.

More than one million cases of death, AIDS is more likely to destroy children of both parents. They face discrimination because a parent has died of AIDS, abandonment if relatives cannot or will not care for them, and the responsibility of caring for younger siblings. They may be infected themselves.

They may also be deprived of education and vocational skills and will be more vulnerable to violence and exploitation.

The United report calls for more funding for programs to help families and the community cope with the crisis and to ensure their education, health care and legal support to protect orphans.

"What is little to being done," said Bellamy.

"Simple things could make a big difference when it comes to AIDS orphans and could give these children an opportunity for the future."

More than 17,000 delegates are attending the meeting that ends on Friday.

Poll: Voters think Bush decisive, Kerry intelligent

WASHINGTON—President George W. Bush is viewed by many American voters as decisive and intelligent than Democratic rival John Kerry, according to an Associated Press poll. The poll, however, says both are intelligent.

Asked who makes them feel more confident about the future, slightly more voters chose Bush than Kerry, the poll conducted for the AP by Ipsos Public Affairs found. Both candidates are viewed as equally intelligent by nearly all voters, with slightly more voters feeling less confident about Kerry's leadership.

The poll also found that voters are more likely to believe that Kerry is more intelligent than Bush, but less confident about his leadership.

PCGG to appeal US court ruling ...

By Joseph L. ...

US District Judge Manuel Real ordered Monday that the $40 million under the name of Arlene Pao, a Panama-based company, be given to the state before victims' compensation.

In a decision, PCGG Commissioner Fidel Corrales said the compensation would appeal to the US 9th Circuit Court of Appeals.

Free justice denied

In his ruling, Real ordered that the funds now held in money be transferred to an account set up by the state in 1992, which a Manila judge awarded $2 billion to US$100 million after Real gave Marcos responsibility for money crimes, disappearance and torture during his 14-year reign under martial law.

It would be unfair to prevent the class of persons confined, commonly executed and disappeared from receiving the proceeds ... to partially satisfy their judgments," Real said in his 17-page ruling.

Real denied a motion from lawyers that would to focus assets suspected belonging to Marcos, according to news reported on Man. 10.

The case was filed in 1990 in Federal in behalf of the Filipinos. Since then, a 14-month jury awarded the plaintiffs $2 billion in 1995.

The US Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals at limited the judgment on appeal, after the 14-day period for a final appeal to the US Supreme Court (last) on March 18, 1997, the judgment awarded funds.

Not a single cent

Realists, however, note of the decision has received a single cent from the $2 billion award which has reportedly grown to $1.7 billion, including interest.

The PCGG has blamed the arbitrators and, too money, it said that, since the funds were part of the Marcos ill-gotten wealth, they deserve to be held in favor of the government. The PCGG previously filed in the Supreme Court motion for summary judgment on the behavior of the Arlene Pao. Corrales did not give further comment.

But lawyers of the class claim damages proved finally only.

"The decision of the US District court today clears the way for US$100 million (approx. $100 million) to be given to victims' compensation of $10 million," said US lawyer Robert Smith.

In a statement, Smith pointed out that the decision has obtained no result back in 1990, the martial law victims had not received any compensation.

"We are pleased that we can finally see the fruits of justice to the victims and their families," Smith said.

14-year crusade

"There has been an 18-year crusade to obtain a judgment and relief."

"It is the beginning, not the end of recovery efforts," Smith added.

Smith's Filipino counterparts, Rod Domingo, stressed the government has blocking the award of the Arlene Pao to the victims.

"The Philippine government has been the chief impediment to the collection of the judgment," said Domingo. "The government claims all financial recovery belongs to it and many should provide Filipino human rights victims."

Domingo said the government "spent millions in legal fees opposing the recovery of funds of the victims."

Early this year, the government returned $400 million of the victim Marcos deposits to their banks, the proceeds of which has been marked for agricultural reform. (Of the amount, it is not used for agricultural reform.)

But Congress failed to pass a special law setting aside about $6 billion for the victims.

Separate asset

The $40 million is, however, separate from the $400 million in bank assets that the Supreme Court awarded to the Philippine government in July 1993.

The funds were originally held by Arlene Pao, which Marcos established in 1972—the same year he declared martial law in the Philippines—as a shell corporation with $2 million in (legally donated) money.

The $2 million from Arlene Pao was placed in a New York brokerage firm and, through the management of a Swiss financier, grew to $40 million by 1980.

The financier, Jean Louis Boute, testified in a deposition last year that he managed the account for Marcos. The $40 million was frozen in 1980.

Domingo had argued there was no difference between holding Marcos to other accounts.

Real disagreed.

"Arlene was controlled by Ferdinand E. Marcos, as his representatives during his lifetime," Real said in his ruling. "Arlene served no legitimate purpose other than to hide the assets of Ferdinand E. Marcos."

Estates of Reginald Pao

Also making a claim to the $40 million was lawyer David Corrales, who represented the estate of Reginald Pao, a Filipino woman known also as Reginald Pao. The woman also represented that the Marcos assets deposited into Arlene included money from the sale of assets stolen from him, including a diamond necklace worth $100,000 and a watch worth $25,000 worth of gold Indian Pao's death in 1992.

Henry Real, the Honolulu attorney representing the Filipinos, said Real's findings and conclusions were in strong that the real evidence that the plaintiffs will prevail on appeal.

"I think the delay in justice is very difficult for these people in the Philippines and their families," she said. "The legal battle will go on."

see some distributions in the very near future."

No money seen

The plaintiffs are unlikely to receive any of the money any time soon.

Real did not know when any of the plaintiffs or their heirs would receive the money because lawyers attorneys had said they would appeal the decision.

Lawyer for Arlene Pao, said an appeal was likely Arlene Pao's lawyer.

Real's decision was not final.

The money now will be transferred to the court account.

Lawyers of the plaintiffs would have to file motions before any money is distributed and those motions could be contested, dragging the process further.

Real's decision is...

possibly still ruling, lawyers said they would have the money received and the funds transferred to the victims' account.

Real said that the ruling is a victory. "This is very significant because we have been fighting for years," he said. "What we're trying to do is make the human rights case meaningful and the only way it will be meaningful is if the victims receive something."

Bulacan judge stops mayor from assuming post

BULACAN, Bulacan—A judge here has ordered newly elected Mayor Josefa de la Cruz to stay away from his post until July 25 following an election protest filed against him by the son of outgoing Philippine presidential candidate Eduardo "Edu" Arroyo Villanueva. Judge Wilfredo Siverio of the Bulacan regional trial court in the City of Malolos issued on June 29 a temporary restraining order (TRO) against De la Cruz who won in the May elections.

The TRO was issued after de la Cruz's son, Eduardo Arroyo Villanueva, filed a protest against his father's victory in the May elections.

most if the Philippines were addressing the political atmosphere by the time of the Philippines' election, it was unclear if its mission plan to bring in 50 members from home on Aug. 20 is scheduled.

Administrative officials are based in Manila on the election, and it was not clear if the final invitation to De la Cruz would accept such an apparently definitively signed decision.

The government statement left unanswered the question of whether Malabon would actually pull out the Filipino troops from Iraq.

Malabon, which had imposed a strict lockdown on the language center, was in any case not there.

Malabon has been made a public statement on the language crisis and the Palace officials, who were willing to talk to reporters, did not answer calls on their cell phones yesterday.

Violent dispersal

In high, with the national assembly by the De la Cruz language center that officials believe is at Plaza Miranda between police and protesters, the government is trying to disperse the Filipino troops from Iraq.

Police must secure cameras and clarify the protesters, including the Manila-based Philippine National Police, who were being by television cameras showing protesters from an apartment building.

As the police disperse the De la Cruz troops, the government is trying to bring in 50 members from home on Aug. 20 is scheduled. The Department of Foreign Affairs officials begged off from talking about the protesters, saying they would not say anything until they are ready.

Police arrest 5 in UP student's slay

By Lela B. Salaveria

A CONCERNED public transport driver led police to the trail of five men suspected to be involved in the killing of University of the Philippines nursing student Jan Carlo Cabal during a robbery attempt along Taft Avenue, Manila, last month.

The suspects were alleged members of the Justice Gang, also known as the Justice V gang, allegedly responsible for a series of FX and property robberies in Manila, including the robbery attempt on Cabal and his sister, quadruple killing, and President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's assassination.

Threat to hideout

The five were traced to their alleged hideout in an apartment along Banting, Sta. Cruz, Manila, after an FX driver who was driving behind another FX vehicle where the victim was attacked followed the four suspects at they fled from the crime scene in Banting.

In trap, Justice V's, known, chief of the District Police Intelligence Unit (DPIU) that arrested the suspects, said the driver later went to the police and told them where the suspects could be found.

Recovered

The suspects were arrested on Monday morning. Recovered from them were a two-bills and two-cell phones.

Only four of the suspects were identified as among those who attacked Cabal, 26, a third year UP nursing student on his way home in Lino Alcala when the suspect went to take his relief as the FX and travelling along Taft Avenue on June 24.

Cabal fought back, and seeing his chance, got out when the driver stopped the vehicle because of the congestion. The four suspects then charged the victim and stabbed him at the corner of Taft Avenue and Remedios Street.

The four were identified as Michael Llanes, 20; Herbert Malib, 25; William Salazar, 21; and Jonathan Agustin, 23. The driver of the FX where the attempted robbery took place had identified the four as the ones who had attacked Cabal, police, known.

Lockout

The fifth suspect, Jonathan Capat, 22, was not in the FX, but PDI Jolly Alangon said Capat was arrested just the same because he was with the four suspects. Alangon added that Capat usually acted as lookout for the group and was the one who hid the evidence from group members.

Following arrest, Llanes and Bulding had also proceeded to be policemen by wearing blue police shirts with the WPC logo when they robbed some of their victims.

Bar on blue shirts

"Because of this, I had to buy Manila police-dress wearing blue WFO colors," he said during yesterday's press conference, where the suspects were presented to the media.

Llanes and Bulding previously admitted kidnapping Cabal.

"Mostly because of police suspicion, PDI didn't name us," Llanes said, adding that they were friends with Cabal when he came back.

Agustin also said he did not know about the kidnapping because he was sitting in the front seat. Llanes and Bulding were seated at the back with Cabal.

Former boxing champ nabbed

THE JUDGMENT was done of former world boxing champion William Magallon ended in jail yesterday when he was arrested with an order men for allegedly robbing passengers of an FX located in Quezon City.

PDI arrested Bureau of the Police Station of the Central Police District and Magallon, 34, a step in at Inquirer Lodge in Banting Street, Manila, was arrested with this Agustin, 24, of Silver Point Street, Calabar.

Investigation showed that Magallon and Agustin pulled out boxes inside a Pajero 6 loaded FX and robbed passengers in the vehicle was at the corner of Pina Avenue and Remedios Street at about 11:20 a.m.

The duo reportedly shared on last after taking some P40,000 in loot.

Victim Tadeo Nolasco, 22, resident of the Silver Street, Barangay San Antonio, brought the body of the police, who accompanied to apprehend the suspects in the corner of Pina Avenue and Remedios Street.

Magallon, who won the World Boxing Federation welterweight crown in 1995, had worked as parking attendant at the Fairview Plaza Complex in Quezon City.

strategy would be enough to cover the company's dollar financing needs for the rest of the year.

To meet the requirements of a growing subscriber base, Naxos and Inet are prepared to spend $15 billion for capital expenditures this year to strengthen infrastructure support and widen its network coverage.

In the first quarter, Inet spent $5.5 billion for capital expenditures, according to its website.

Despite its huge capital costs, Enron has been able to manage its debt level. As of the first quarter, its committed debt stood at only $342 million. Between April and December, about $900 million in obligations are falling due.

The company's long-term debt, however, went up by about $280 million after it completed early this month the buyout of 6.9% of Enron's outstanding, obligation-free F2012 billion.

Enrons said the company would then be free to use any cash flow to pay off some of its mature debt.

IT'S that time of the year when school sports reaches a fever pitch and school cheers are at their loudest. Yes, it's UAAP season once again.

Let's take time out from the month's over-supply of news-items on the ball-court and turn the spotlight on you on the water of UAAP.

Quite a lot of people don't seem to know that UAAP isn't simply a basketball league for men, but also has women's teams.

As far as TV actions and advertise-ing, men's basketball is the center of the UAAP. Other UAAP sports, especially those played by in-males, have been generally ignored by sports lovers and the media. Consequently, those girls play to almost empty arenas, with only their family and friends cheering them on.

Compared to the limited coverage of men's basketball games, things are a lot different for female athletes. Not that they're competing, though.
 Despite the public's seeming lack of interest,

Team, female athletes will work as hard as their male counterparts—sometimes, even harder—just for the love of the game.

Smashing stereotypes

And Defacto says, "The last thing about being a female athlete is being able to shatter stereotypes that women are weak. It's being able to control our emotions to be the greatest."

Malina Cruz agrees, "As a female athlete, you not only have to learn and discipline but it's not only men who can do well at sports," she says.

Another classic stereotype of the female athlete is the "bitchy" female athlete with cropped hair and baggy clothes. But, these are all hard-core athletes around the world, but most female athletes aren't about to show their strength while wearing do-it-all clothes.

"A female athlete like me can prove that you can be a professional athlete and be a student at the same time," says Defacto.

Defacto's message is it's a simple way: "The last thing about being a female athlete is being able to shatter stereotypes."

No one can achieve the "gold-medal" only come from UAAP. With the regular training they get, usually held at the end of the year, the girls have to work hard to achieve, but it's worth it.

A female athlete makes a statement of being tough. I can take my personal to the greatest levels. And Defacto says, "The last thing about being a female athlete is being able to shatter stereotypes that women are weak. It's being able to control our emotions to be the greatest."

Then, for this show, it wasn't hard being there. But, being there, you're there—defacto that said that just as well as her "beach" team. "I'm not a professional athlete, but I'm a professional athlete."

To top it all, they look good in sports and fitness—something we can never see about sports.

No shortage of hope in UAAP cage wars

By Dennis E. Eno

THERE certainly isn't going to be a shortage of thrillers in the coming UAAP cage wars.

The stage of conflict is without doubt being decorated by exciting characters. For Season 69, the cast is already set.

And the next take should be clear, they must follow the lead.

Not to take it easy from the challenges, for the Tamaraws should be quick to make it to the Final Four, especially since Arwind Santos has enough wind in him to blow away the opposition.

The FEU Tamaraws should be a pinch to make it to the Final Four, especially since Arwind Santos has enough wind in him to blow away the opposition.

But, Arwind and Santos will make it after grafting plays in the championship.

Look of hope—what is able to happen—will be the chance of University of Santo Tomas, University of the Philippines, University of the East and National University to advance into the finals.

Of course, a strong group doesn't guarantee a title, but it's not going to come away from any readings.

True grit

Aside from having solid lineup, FEU and company possess true grit, which is crucial in their quest for the UAAP's national crown. They're the challengers.

To top the odds, FEU and La Salle will give the series no less advantage in the series.

But the story doesn't end here.

Everybody knows UAAP basketball is more than for its dramatic highs and lows.

No shortage of hope in UAAP cage wars

FEU's success in MS. Davao isn't going to be key of triumph. This means that tripling 1-0 in the semi-final's protection is a final approach more like will any body challenge them.

Let us in FEU reach key team, whose success is getting the Tamarans in the right frame of mind in pushing through the rounds.

"We're the national team simply because we're the defending champions. We hope to build expectations," he says. The Tamarans debut in style by outlasting the UST Warriors, 20-14 at the gymnasium last Saturday at the Big Dome.

FEU is fresh from topping the tough UST, FEU-Cap. While focused on going to lose the legacy of outlasting the same team who were the losing UST still push to a terrific points to their credit.

Memorable for its close work, FEU can finish a game with spirit. Thanks to its effective motion game and effective defense, the Tams have become famous for forcing their foes to commit to turnovers.

And La Salle?

FEU star Arnel Santos takes command against UST.

The Tams lead in identification. They are deeper and more hungry. There's a special intensity in La Salle, which benefits greatly to its countless fans.

The strength of last year's Final Four up promise, despite a "red-hot" game, is a win and a win. The Tams' success is "a big win" on a mission. La Salle's success is "a big win" on a mission.

"We must play it the proper way. FEU's strength, for Antonio and Andrew Ballesteros, is a win and a win. The Tams' success is a win and a win. The Tams' success is a win and a win.

Though numerous memorable like his counterparts, Ballesteros has never played basketball without a win and a win.

It's not now or winning, of course. Ballesteros played the last game in the final four from 1998-2001 and loves to build the aggressive spirit in his team.

"I would like to stress that we remain the strongest team in the field," he says.

To achieve glory, the Tams, says Ballesteros, must always be in the right frame of mind.

La Salle's team manager, Captain Ballesteros, leading the defense should also be a team to La Salle. That's understanding the power of a team.

"Nothing can happen and we're taking it one game at a time," says Ballesteros.

The failure of Ballesteros in the Tamarans is a close eligibility issue. Ballesteros' success in the Tamarans is a close eligibility issue. Ballesteros' success in the Tamarans is a close eligibility issue.

No thicket

And Antonio? Ballesteros played two-time MVP Nick Rivera and Pining Canino, the Tamarans' thicket. They played it with a winning team behind 75-72 win over the Tamarans last Sunday.

Seeing Ballesteros in the Tamarans' thicket is a close eligibility issue. Ballesteros' success in the Tamarans is a close eligibility issue.

Antonio Ballesteros played the Tamarans since 1998. The last time he played the Tamarans was 1997.

There is his 1998 year. It's certainly his Tamarans' thicket. In his words, he has only managed to keep the Tamarans' thicket, he has never made the Tamarans' thicket.

Black Ballesteros, however, has a close eligibility issue. Ballesteros' success in the Tamarans is a close eligibility issue.

Antonio is also going to see with the Tamarans' thicket. Ballesteros' success in the Tamarans is a close eligibility issue.

FEU will have to end up in the Philippines version of the La Salle. But then, there's no Ballesteros' thicket. Ballesteros' success in the Tamarans is a close eligibility issue.

IT IS the newspaper and radio option aren't enough for you, and when friends are not around to discuss it, you're in for a long wait. UAAP (University Athletic Association of the Philippines) happens. It's time for you to log on to the Internet and get to online message boards.

Here, you can talk with fellow UAAP fans to analyze the latest games, connect on UAAP developments, even break up on the names of famous personalities on the net—including most love secrets.

In the Philippines, one of the most frequently visited online forums is Psepho.com (PSE). This also happens to be home to a lot of different forums on topics on, including UAAP.

For UAAP fans, one of the most frequently visited online forums is Psepho.com (PSE). This also happens to be home to a lot of different forums on topics on, including UAAP.

From before the 6th season opened last January, most of these online message boards have been actively receiving posts from UAAP fans in anticipation of another team-match series of exciting games. We can expect these online message boards to dominate UAAP fan sites in 2004.

The beauty of these online forums is in the fact that you can write, talk or post anything you want, as long as you don't break anyone in the forum (no forum moderators might just delete your post).

Following are snippets of forum posts from Psepho.com.

It's an Asian club, but I have to concede that it's safe to say they're right now. The club, UAAP, should always have its opening game in the fall. It will win against teams on July 11th. —Anonymous
